As a libertarian I would like to see Social Security overhauled and eventually eliminated. I would prefer to see this happen via the Cato Institute's 6.2% Plan. This plan would make younger folks enter into a market based plan with 6.2% of their pay being earmarked for this. Retirees and those close to retirement would remain in the program, which would be made solvent in the meantime. Those workers in the middle will have the option to remain in the old system or opt out. This plan has been rated by the CBO and shown to achieve solvency while providing a long term alternative solution. So I support the idea of you having full benefits if we can also get serious about fixing the problem for good.
